WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

- A typical spring storm will impact portions of Northern California, the Sierra's and western Nevada today through Thursday.
- Gusty winds up to 55 mph in the valleys and greater than 80 mph along the Sierra ridges can be anticipated today through early Thursday.
- More widespread light rain with mountain snow accumulations are expected later this afternoon into Thursday morning—tapering to showers Thursday along with continued gusty winds.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

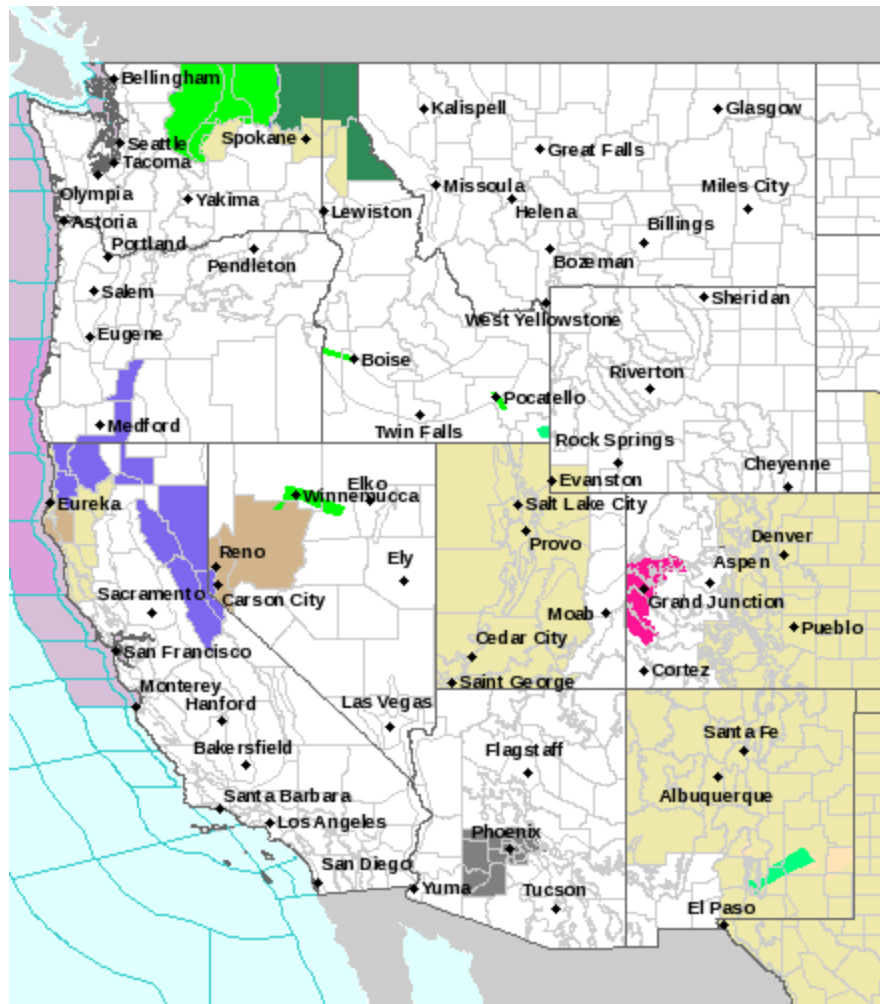

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

An unsettled weather pattern will continue through the next 7 days as a series of wet, windy Pacific storm systems move through the Northern California region. One system will be moving through the region today, and without much break in between systems overnight, another, wetter system will arrive Wednesday. Precipitation from that system will be heaviest overnight Wednesday and linger but be more showery Thursday, especially in the northern and eastern areas. A few thunderstorms will also be possible Thursday. Showers will continue to hang around in the far northern areas Friday. Friday night through Sunday morning look dry, but not necessarily cloud-free across the Geographic Area. Sunday afternoon a small weather system will arrive just off the Bay Area coast and spread some light rain northward across the region. With no break between systems, another wetter system is expected Monday. Snow levels later Wednesday are likely to drop to 3500-4000 ft in the NW and 6500-7000 ft over the Sierra. There will be periods of moderately strong, gusty southerly winds accompany the approach of the weather systems this week with sustained speeds mostly 12-22 mph and strongest gusts of 30-40 mph. Temperatures will also be 5-12 degrees below normal for the next 3 days.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

There will be little change in temperature today as zonal flow continues across the West Coast. Maximum temperatures will be in the mid 50s to mid 60s across the mountains and upper 60s and 70s in the valleys. Temperatures will become a little below normal Thursday as a trough moves inland over Northern California. This trough will also bring scattered showers with less than a quarter inch of rainfall to Central California this evening through Thursday afternoon. The snow level will be between 7,000 and 8,000 feet. Westerly winds of 15 to 25 mph with gusts to 40 mph will surface across the wind prone mountain and desert areas through Thursday evening. A weak ridge of high pressure will bring warming and drying to the region Friday through this weekend. Temperatures will be 5 to 10 degrees above normal and minimum humidity will drop to 12% to 25% this weekend. A series of Pacific troughs will move inland across Northern California bringing a little below normal temperatures to the area and showers to Central California next week.

Cal OES LAW ENFORCEMENT MISSIONS

New/ Ongoing/ Closed Cal OES Missions

- 2017-LAW-36163. 4/11/17 @ 1200 hours: Sutter County DA's Office requested a Human Remains Detection Dog to search a vehicle for indications that the vehicle was used to transport human remains. The request was referred to Santa Clara Sheriff's Office who evaluated the circumstances and determined that there was very little possibility of a successful search and declined the mission. Mission Closed
- 2017-LAW-35137, 04/09/17, 2007 hours, San Bernardino County Sheriff requested Type I Alpine searchers to assist in locating a 78 year old male overdue from a hike on Mt. Baldy. Searchers were requested to meet on 04/10/17 at 0700 hours at the Mt. Baldy Fire Station, 6730 Mt. Baldy Road, Mt. Baldy. Kern, Los Angeles, Riverside, and San Diego were contacted for resources. Update, 04/11/17, 0700, Mutual Aid resources from Kern, Los Angeles, Riverside, San Diego, Orange, Ventura, and Fresno Counties continue search efforts. Update: 4/11/17 @ 1500 hours: Searchers located the victim deceased; the body was located just inside Los Angeles County, and the recovery was turned over to LA County Coroner's Office. Mission Closed
- 2017-LAW-35129, 4/9/17 @ 1828 hours: (Reopened) AFRCC reported a PLB activation at 37° 18.33' by -121° 51.13' which plotted to a parking lot in San Jose Ca. The registration information for the device was out of date and none of the emergency contact numbers were valid. AFRCC requested that local police check the area. I called San Jose Police and made the request. They checked the parking lot and found a flea market with about 1,000 people selling various items. They checked with security at the event but no problems were reported. AFRCC advised. AFRCC did not request anything additional at this time, but did indicate that additional follow up would be needed if the device continued to broadcast a distress signal. Update: 4/11/17 @ 1500 hours: AFRCC reports that the device is back in distress mode. It was plotted at four separate locations in Oakland. The most recent location is 37° 45.8' by -122° 11.6', which plots to near 1440 65th St in Oakland. AFRCC will continue to monitor and advise if further action is needed Update: 4/11/17 @ 1800 hours, AFRCC is reporting the PLB is still activating with updated coordinates: 37° 45.60' by -122° 12.73' PLB is in the area of Oakport St. in Oakland. Since the device has continued to activate over the last 4 days, LDO and AFRCC agreed to launch a CAP (Civil Air Patrol) mission to located and silence the device. Update 4/12/17 @0600 hours, CAP was unable to located the device last night. There are no new coordinates and the device continues to sound in a very populated area in Oakland. CAP will attempt to located and silence today. Mission On-Going

Cal OES MISSIONS
